WELCOME

Stress is the driving force that keeps us on our toes and ensures that we push to be the best we can be. However that is only valid up to a certain point. If we have too much stress and endless wear and tear, it can drive us into physical, mental and emotional exhaustion.

Certainly we can't avoid the problem. Situations arise on a day-to-day basis, which make physical, mental and emotional demands on us. There may be decisions that need to be made, deadlines that need to be met, and lessons to be learned.

Unreasonable stress affects one in five of the working population and after acute medical conditions it is the most common cause of long term sickness absence from work (CIPD Absence Management 2014).

Stress undoubtedly makes people ill. It is now known to contribute to heart disease, hypertension and high blood pressure, it affects the immune system, is linked to strokes, IBS (Irritable Bowel Syndrome), ulcers, diabetes, muscle and joint pain, miscarriage, allergies, alopecia and even premature tooth loss.

Therefore it is imperative to strike the right balance. As individuals, we must take stock of all aspects of our life and situations and learn to cope better.

Treat it early, and your prospects are good. Ignore the problem, and there is a risk that 'burnout' may become a permanent state of affairs.

UNCERTAINTY

COMMENTS	RANK
Job insecurity for some roles - temporary contracts
Isolation and loneliness from being in a remote team
Inability to project into the future and get excited about work because of uncertainty
Uncertainty
A lot of diverse narratives that may not necessarily meld together at this point
Stressed from some engagements moving away from our true values on meaningful participation for young activists
Grief and loss of friends and family from COVID
Anxiety about more people leaving... who will I be working with tomorrow?
I feel increasingly stressed, anxious; working remotely it is even more difficult to communicate wellbeing/ needed support. I also feel like when these issues are brought up, not much action is taken. It is difficult to find solutions or have these conversations as well when it is usually a collective and not individual feeling. Right now it doesn't feel like a bridge that we can cross over, but a never ending highway.

RESOURCES

Own list of various deliverables
Lack of clarity on when the team's permanent managers will be hired
Gaps in resourcing to deliver ALL the deliverables
Multiple projects suspended because we have roles that are vacant
Serious health issues requiring a lot of energy and time
The mass exodus from the team
When I email people in admin, HR, finance, or any other team, they do not respond or provide the necessary support to do my role
Not enough support from line-managers to support our wellbeing
Not being able to work on the things that interest me and will improve girls' rights more meaningfully
There is a concerning amount of turnover and majority of it correlates to fatigue, burnout, stress and unmanageable expectations without much incentive (in terms of clear growth opportunities, progression, recognition, salary increments, etc.). The workload has stayed the same and the expectations from Leadership has risen. Junior staff are staying on to complete the work without clear direction and limited resources

INFRASTRUCTURE

Interdependencies with other departments pulling the team in different directions
Short notice requests to input/ provide information in various initiatives/ meetings etc.
Tasks take longer because I don't have connections across the org from being new to the team
Too much admin tasks! Takes time away from meaningful work
Boredom from admin and looking for translators, rather than more strategic thinking
Last minute requests from management to provide more information
Lack of opportunities for professional development and learning for us in the team
Major zoom fatigue
There isn't a clear mechanism for resolving conflicts
Holding pieces of work of my line manager who left, but these aren't in my job description
Unclear expectations or information about how to do my job, as so many colleagues who had institutional memory have left
Lack of accountability of how line management is done and how our line managers care for our wellbeing
We're missing 5 positions in the team, 2 of them have interim replacements, all of them are senior positions. In the past 8-12 months 7-8 people have left the team with 4 of them leaving without jobs lined up. I have been in the team/organisation the longest and that is only 3-4 years.

THE TOP PRINCIPLE

Worrying about the future can cost us a lot of time and energy. It is a time robber just like unexpected or unscheduled interruptions. Time robbers are a massive problem when trying to manage your time effectively. Dealing with time robbers is ultimately a problem solving exercise. This consists of a logical 'step by step' analysis of what the problem actually is. It is also necessary to define the level of control.

A useful device for ascertaining this level is the TOP principle: is the problem...

Totally within my control

Outside of my control

Partially within my control

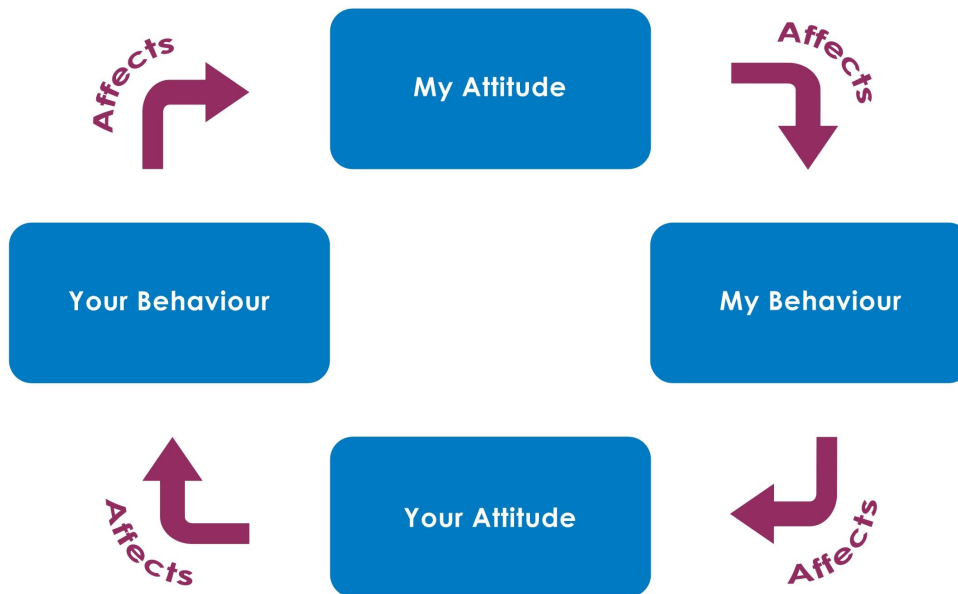

If the problem is totally outside of your control, then there is absolutely no point in attempting to solve it, we have to re-focus our energies on to things that we can an effect over

How would you classify each of your 3 worries? Circle the respective letter.

Our stress levels may increase due to the behaviour of the people around us but also by the way we react to them. The following module draws on the Betari's Box concept to raise awareness of how people's behaviours and attitudes are directly linked to each other, and how we can reduce interpersonal conflict and stress.

ATTITUDE AFFECTS BEHAVIOUR

Our attitude becomes visual through our external behaviour. This may be apparent in the signals we send to others, such as smiles, tone of voice and use of particular words. It has an effect on how we act towards other people. The reverse is also true. The attitude of others has an effect on their own behaviour.

BEHAVIOUR AFFECTS OTHERS' ATTITUDES

If a person is aggressive towards you, you will interpret this in a certain way, which will in turn affect your own attitude. And again, the reverse is true. Your behaviour affects the attitudes of those around you as they interpret, rightly or wrongly, what you do. This creates a circle. The way you act affects someone else's attitude. Their attitude affects their behaviour, which has an effect on your own attitude that affects your behaviour, and the cycle continues.

SWITCHING OFF - EVALUATION EXERCISE

Before we begin looking at mindsets, it may be helpful for you to think about your own, how it affects your life and to share this with a partner.

<https://switchingoff.questionpro.com>

1. What does switching off mean to you?

2. When you are unable to switch off, what is the cause?

3. When you are unable to switch off, how does it affect you:

A. Mentally?

B. Emotionally?

C. Physically?

4. How often are you unable to switch off?

5. What do you do to switch off?

6. What else could you do to help you switch off?

REPLAY THE DAY EXERCISE

This is a powerful mindfulness exercise to help you re-evaluate an existing behaviour or more quickly install a new positive behaviour. This purpose of this exercise is about:

BEING PRESENT IN THE MOMENT

WITNESSING OBJECTIVELY

SWITCHING FROM 'ACTOR' TO 'DIRECTOR' IN YOUR STORY

Before you start; do a quick check-in - notice your surroundings, what you can see and hear, how you feel right now.

Sit calmly and start with some deep breathing – in through the nose and out through the mouth. After a few deep breaths, slowly close your eyes and let your breathing return to normal - you don't need to force it.

In this quiet state, begin to replay the events of your day from the moment you woke up to where you are sitting right now. If you find it difficult to picture the events of the day, try to list them instead— you might find that after a short while pictures will come into your mind.

Just observe. The movie in your head doesn't require any judgment, self-criticism or voice-over...this isn't a DVD extra!

When no more events come to mind, start to notice your breath again - in through the nose and out through the mouth. Slowly, start to count your breaths. When you breathe in; that's one. When you breathe out; that's two. Do this up to 10 - when you get to 10... start again!

It is time to start coming back. Notice how you feel sitting in the chair; your feet on the ground, your back and legs in the seat.

In a few moments, in your own time when you open your eyes, sit quietly after the good practice you have done. Check-in and notice your surroundings, what can you see and hear? How do you feel now?

Contraindications

- You are in control of any practice that you participate in
- Do not feel compelled to 'carry on regardless' or complete the practice because of any perceived expectation to do so - there is no expectation.
- If you feel 'unwell', 'panicked' or just 'weird' at any point...simply stop and sit the practice out—there's no judgement here.

ABOUT INTERNATIONAL WELLBEING INSIGHTS

Stress is a much used (and abused) term these days. You frequently hear people say “I’m stressed” or “I’m depressed”, yet there is still much confusion about what these terms actually mean and how best to tackle them. This is where we can help. We are the UK’s leading authority on stress management issues, which is why you will regularly hear us talking about this topic in the media.

International Wellbeing Insights is an organisation dedicated to leading effective universal change by maximising your resilience, happiness, productivity and success with our passionate approach to reducing stress and promoting wellbeing. Our extensive knowledge of stress and wellbeing and our cutting edge interventions have made us the primary organisation dealing with work-related stress reduction and wellbeing promotion in the UK since 2003.

For years, we’ve been empowering individuals to take charge of their wellbeing through our workshops, guides and regular updates. We also act as a trusted advisor for many companies such as SMBC, Garrett, Dragados, DHL, and the NHS—guiding them through the wellbeing solution maze.

For more information or to book a workshop or a coaching session see www.wellbeing.work or call 0203 142 8650 or email info@stress.org.uk

If you want to promote wellbeing in your company using branded stress management products, go to www.stress.org.uk.
